StockMarketWire.com - Herencia Resources has revealed 'great results' from metallurgical test work at its flagship Paguanta project in Chile.

The company said there were zinc and silver recoveries in excess of 80% and 90% respectively with silver concentrate grades ranging from 2,000 to 18,000g/t.

The project is 70%-owned and managed by Herencia.

Managing director Graeme Sloan said: "To achieve zinc recovery in excess of 80%, silver recovery of 92% and lead recovery of 80% are great results for the company.

"The results clearly demonstrate that we can produce high grade silver and zinc concentrate products from our Paguanta project.

"Further metallurgical test work is underway on additional variability samples from the primary, transition and oxide zones which will be used to fine tune the final process design and concentrate specifications.

"Achieving these positive results is another important milestone for the Company as it progresses the Paguanta project toward production."
